Art Unit: 3629

Applicant's response of 8/4/03 has been entered. Currently claims 1-13 are pending. The instant examiner has reviewed the prosecution history to date and notes the previous rejections of record and arguments presented by applicant.

1. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

2. Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention. The amendment of 5/23/03 added the limitation of "without human intervention" to claim 1. The specification as originally filed did not disclose that no human intervention occurs in the method. In fact the examiner finds it impossible for there to be no human intervention involved because the customer is using a computer to search for a product to purchase and the customer (a human) is the one that causes account data to be sent and processed by the financial computer. A human is required and the added limitation of "without human intervention" is deemed to be new matter.

3. Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention.

Art Unit: 3629

The specification does not provide an adequate written description so that one of skill in the art could make and use the invention as claimed where the invention is practiced with no human intervention. The examiner feels this way because it is the customer who initiates the sending of data to affect the purchase of the product. One of skill in the art would have to undergo undue experimentation to figure out how to practice the invention with no human intervention.

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

5. Claims 1-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Payne et al. (5715314).

For claims 1,6,11, Payne discloses a method of operating a computer on a network as claimed. The network is 10 and is disclosed as being the Internet. Payne discloses that financial computer 16 receives customer account data. See column 6, lines 31-42, where it is disclosed that the customer clicks on the continue button and the user is prompted for an account name and a password. Once the user does this, the data is sent to the financial computer and the financial computer automatically receives the data. The amount data is sent from the merchant computer as disclosed in column

Art Unit: 3629

5, lines 48-56. The merchant computer creates a payment URL that contains a payment amount. The payment URL is received by the financial computer as claimed. Authorization indicia is created by the financial computer. The authorization indicia is the "access URL" disclosed by Payne in step 80.

For claims 2-4,7-9,12,13, the claimed password is considered to be the "access URL authenticator" that is sent to the customer computer. The URL authenticator is considered as a password because it is used to verify or authenticate the transaction.

For claims 5,10, the step of receiving "acceptance indicia" is considered to be satisfied by the disclosure of the financial computer receiving data such as product identifier, or network address or other data. The term "acceptance indicia" is a broad term (really just means receipt of indicia) and in this claim is just claiming the act of receiving data, which is found in Payne.

6. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-13 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

7. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within

TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
